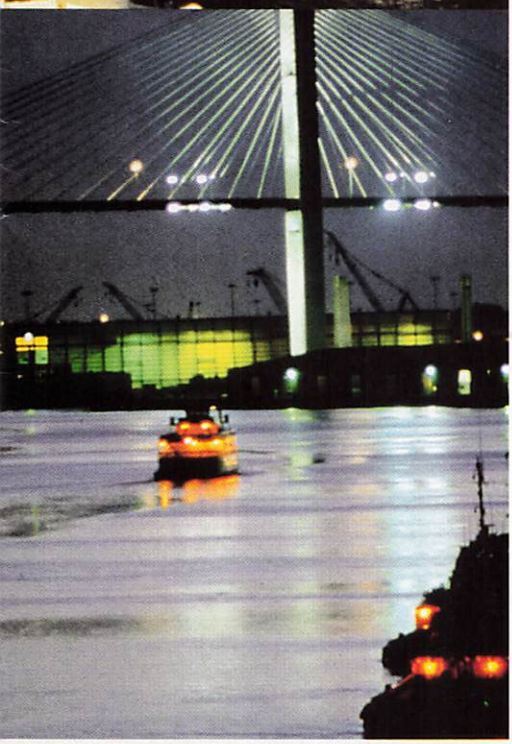
Life here is more relaxed, more friendly. We think that's because our history is so delicately woven into the Savannah of today and the deep-seated tradition of southern hospitality is so much a part of our daily life.



Savannah: Enchanting by Day . . . Magic by Night

Savannah, one of the most enchanting and exquisite seaside port cities in the world, has charmed visitors for centuries.

Founded in 1733 by Englishman James Edward Oglethorpe, Savannah was one of America's first planned cities and Georgia's first capital. Ancient moss-draped oaks line our picturesque boulevards and beautifully landscaped squares, forming an emerald canopy over one of the nation's largest urban historic districts. Yet it's the historic district's homes, businesses, churches, and museums—more than 1,100 elegant 18th- and 19th-century architectural masterpieces—that lend Savannah a charm and spirit unique among the world's tourist destinations.

Though thoroughly enjoyable by day, history takes a backseat after the sun goes down when Savannah comes alive with concerts, dance, theater, music, and exceptional food. Whether it's a soulful jazz melody, the warm laughter of an amused audience, or the mouthwatering aroma of low-country cuisine, the night air is filled with magic as the city's restaurants, theaters, and nightclubs offer visitors and residents an exciting array of entertainment and dining options.

Just as memorable as the city itself, though, is the graciousness of the people who live here. After all, we've been welcoming visitors for more than 250 years, and we take great pride and care in assuring their stay will be just one of many in our lovely city. Come, see for yourself why Savannah remains one of the world's favorite destination cities. ■

Savannah Hosts the Olympics and the World

Beautiful, historic Savannah will welcome the world in 1996, when the city hosts the Olympic yachting events. The Savannah Marriott Riverfront will serve as the Olympic Village, while the day marina will be located at Sail Harbor Marina next to Beach Hammock in Wassaw Sound.

Although the majority of Olympic events will take place in Atlanta, Savannah will feature its own opening and closing ceremonies—a spectacular series of activities that will include a parade of athletes, medal ceremonies, and possibly even an Olympic flame that will burn here during these momentous sporting events.

The city will also host international regattas leading up to the Olympics, as well as two Arts Ashore cultural festivals—one of which will be held from April through October of 1995, while the other will run from May through August of 1996. For more information, see "1995 Special Events" on p. 37 of this guide. ■

Already the home of many sailing enthusiasts (below), Savannah will host the 1996 Olympic yachting events. But perhaps Savannah is best known for the preservation of its proud history and an innate lure that has attracted visitors for centuries.

History You Can Feel

More than 250 years ago, General James Edward Oglethorpe left England aboard the ship Ann and sailed across the Atlantic with 114 men, women, and children. Landing on what is today the Georgia coast, Oglethorpe chartered the 13th colony in the name of King George II and began the arduous task of carving out an existence in the wilderness of the New World. With the intent of increasing imperial trade and establishing a protective buffer between Spanish Florida and the northern English colonies, particularly South Carolina, Oglethorpe and his charges chose Yamacraw Bluff on the Savannah River as the site for their new home.

Oglethorpe's city plan—whereby he designed a series of public squares to be central areas of fortification, as well as social areas for gathering—has been heralded as a masterpiece of urban planning. Today, 22 of the 24 original squares laid out by the general remain the crowning jewels of the city's 2.2-mile historic district. Truly, the squares—and the gracious homes surrounding them—charm residents and visitors alike with a character unmatched by any other city in North America.

In large part due to its strategic location, Savannah has played a vital military role throughout its history, from its early days as a buffer to Spanish insurgency, to the Civil War when Union General William Tecumseh Sherman took the city and presented it as a Christmas present to President Lincoln. Even today, the Savannah area serves as home to Hunter Army Airfield and Fort Stewart, the largest U.S. Army infantry base east of the Mississippi.

Savannah has also been a vibrant seaport since its beginning, frequently shipping agricultural products and other goods back to England and the rest of Europe. In 1820 cotton had become the dominant export crop and, for nearly a century, trading in the Cotton Exchange on Savannah's waterfront helped set world cotton prices.

But perhaps today Savannah is best known for an innate lure that has attracted visitors since shortly after its founding. In fact, modern Savannah has preserved its proud history and built upon its reputation as a destination city. So come explore historic Savannah and catch a glimpse of the past. Come see us, today. ■

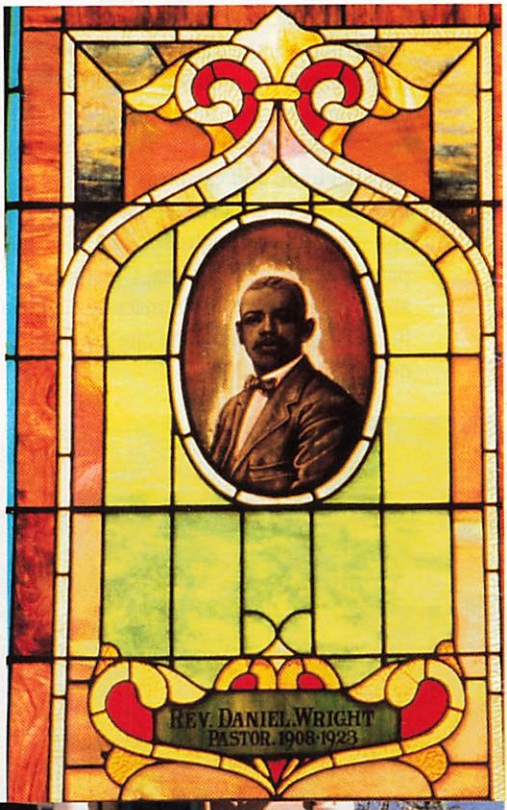
African-American History: Savannah's Roots Grow 250 Years Deep

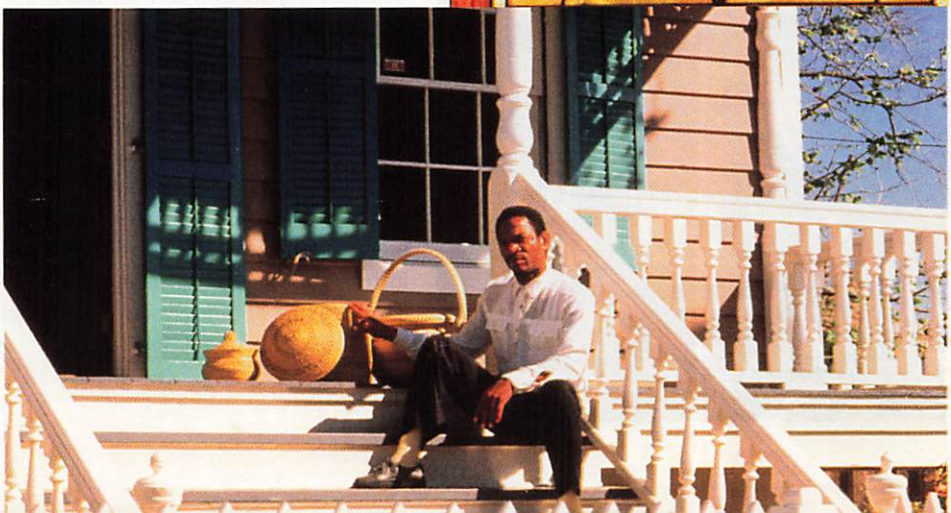
African-Americans played a significant role in the early exploration and settlement of Savannah. Although slavery was the norm until the end of the Civil War, Savannah was home to one of the South's largest communities of free African-Americans—a diverse enfranchised population that included skillful coopers, carpenters, masons, blacksmiths, and artisans.

Today, Savannah offers visitors a unique opportunity to view some of the oldest African-American landmarks in the United States. Savannah will also be home to a new civil rights museum on the proposed site of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. This thoroughfare, formerly West Broad Street, served as an African-American business area where much of the civil rights activity of the 1940s, 1950s, and 1960s took place. If all goes as planned, the civil rights museum will be completed in time to help celebrate the 1996 Olympics.

For additional information regarding African-American history or a free brochure dedicated to the history of African-Americans in Savannah, call 800-444-2427. ■

Today, Savannah offers visitors a unique opportunity to view some of the oldest African-American landmarks in the United States.





AFRICAN-AMERICAN POINTS OF INTEREST

Beach Institute (African-American Cultural Center)
502 East Harris Street
The Beach Institute was established in 1865 by the American Missionary Association to educate newly freed African-American citizens in Savannah. Today it serves as a showcase for African-American arts and crafts exhibitions, most notably the hand-carved wooden sculptures by Ulysses Davis.

First African Baptist Church
23 Montgomery Street
Founded in December 1773 by George Liele, the First African Baptist Church claims to be the oldest, continuously active, autonomously developed black church in North America. The church was the birthplace of the civil rights movement in this area during the 1950s and 1960s.

First Bryan Baptist Church
559 West Bryan Street
On January 20, 1788, Andrew Bryan was ordained as pastor of the church at Brampton Plantation and erected the first church on this site in 1794. On property formerly held by the Yamacraw tribe, this worship site has been owned by African-Americans for more than 200 years.

King-Tisdell Cottage (Museum of Black History)
514 East Huntingdon Street
The King-Tisdell Cottage is a beautifully restored 1896 Victorian cottage named for local African-American citizens Eugene and Sarah King, and Mrs. King's second husband, Robert Tisdell. Today the building serves as an African-American culture museum, highlighting the contributions of African-Americans to our nation's history.

Laurel Grove-South Cemetery
West end of 37th Street
The Laurel Grove-South Cemetery was dedicated in 1852 for the burial of "free persons of color" and slaves. Many of Savannah's most famous citizens, including a number of the first African-American leaders of Georgia, are buried here.

Nicholsonboro Baptist Church
13319 White Bluff Road
The Nicholsonboro community grew out of the turmoil of the last year of the Civil War and the first years of Reconstruction. Some 200 former slaves, most from St. Catherine's, came to Nicholsonboro and established a community in 1868. Ten years later, 18 African-Americans signed a mortgage for 200 acres of land. Fours years later, the thrifty mortgage holders paid the $5,000 and received title to the land. The primary monument of this community is the Nicholsonboro Baptist Church.

Saint Bartholomew's Church
Chevis Road
Constructed in 1896, the elegant Victorian Gothic-style church is home to the oldest black Episcopal congregation in Georgia, which began on a rice plantation south of Savannah.

Saint Phillips Monumental A.M.E. Church
1112 Jefferson Street
The first African Methodist Church in Georgia, Saint Phillips African Methodist Episcopal Church was organized by the Reverend A.L. Stanford in June of 1865. Demolished by a storm in 1896, the church was rebuilt and renamed Saint Phillips Monumental A.M.E. Church. In May 1961, the church moved from Hull Street to its present location at Jefferson Street and Park Avenue.

Savannah History Museum
(Distinguished Service Exhibit)
303 Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard
The Savannah History Museum is housed in the Savannah Visitors Center. "Distinguished Service" is an exhibit highlighting the history of African-American soldiers from the Revolutionary War to after World War II. Also highlighted is the first South Carolina Volunteer Infantry and the 178,895 African-American men who fought during the Civil War.

Savannah State College
P.O. Box 20449, Savannah 31404
Savannah State College was established in 1891 as the Georgia Industrial College for Colored Youths. The college is an outgrowth of the Second Morrill Act of 1890 and an Act of the Georgia General Assembly. Savannah State College is one of the original Negro land-grant colleges and was the first public institution of higher learning to be established for African-Americans in the state. It is now a part of the University System of Georgia.

Second African Baptist Church
123 Houston Street
On the steps of the Second African Baptist Church (formed in 1802 by Andrew Bryan to accommodate an urban congregation), General William Tecumseh Sherman read the Emancipation Proclamation to Savannah's citizens and promised the newly freed slaves "40 acres and a mule." Almost a century later, inside the church, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., preached his "I Have a Dream" sermon, an address he later made during the famous march on Washington, D.C. ■

Savannah, a City of Festivals and Fun

Life here is more relaxed, more friendly. We think that's because our history is so delicately woven into the Savannah of today and the deep-seated tradition of Southern hospitality is so much a part of our daily life. These factors are a big part of what makes Savannah unique and a great reason to celebrate our heritage.

Every month of the year, Savannah abounds with entertainment for the whole family. Our performing arts organizations have a distinguished reputation throughout the Southeast, and we're home to one of the largest art schools in the United States. From historic pageants to great musical events, our city rings with excitement. No matter when you choose to visit, you'll find an excellent diversity of activities throughout the year. (See the "1995 Special Events" on p.37 for more information.)

After discovering Savannah's culture and history, you'll be pleased to find that it's also a wonderful place to relax by the seashore, play golf and tennis, and enjoy all sorts of water sports. In addition, there's the extraordinary seafood cuisine with a delicious Savannah flair.

East of our city lies the great Atlantic and our island beaches. Just 17 miles east of the historic district, Tybee Island, Savannah's family beach, offers seafood restaurants, beachfront accommodations, shell seeking, and deep-sea fishing. At the Tybee Island Lighthouse, you can discover a king-size horde of treasures and climb the stairs of a lighthouse that has stood guard since 1867. ■

From historic pageants to Savannah's St. Patrick's Day Celebration (pictured above), our city rings with excitement. No matter when you choose to visit, you'll find an excellent diversity of activities throughout the year.

HENDERSON GOLF COURSE

A New, Exciting Golf Experience

Savannah's newest golf course provides public play on an exciting par-71, 6,800 yard layout. Enjoy the challenge of lakeside holes, lagoons and marsh crossings, and four sets of tees.

A driving range (lighted at night) and large lakeside putting green can help you get ready for the challenge. Complete your experience inside our PGA-pro run clubhouse where you can order from a full-service grill.

Henderson Golf Course is located at I–95 and Highway 204 at Savannah's Gateway (Exit 16). Overnight accommodations and Savannah's best shopping can be found nearby.

For information or tee times, call 920–GOLF.

ATTRACTIONS

Ancient moss-draped oaks lining picturesque boulevards and beautifully landscaped squares. More than 1,100 elegant 18th- and 19th-century architectural masterpieces dotting the city. A community of gracious people eager to share the magic of their hometown. These are but a few of the reasons why Savannah has been charming visitors for nearly 250 years. What follows is a sampling of Savannah's many historic and entertaining attractions—just enough, we think, for you to see why Savannah remains one of the world's favorite destination cities. For more information and hours of operation, see attractions chart on page 23.

West St. Julian Street. Restored shops, restaurants, studio/art galleries, and taverns. Located on the site of the old City Market, which was demolished in the 1950s.

City Market Arts Center
309 W. St. Julian Street. A visual arts complex of studio/gallery spaces. See artwork in progress.

Davenport House Museum
324 E. State Street. Built circa 1815-1820 by master builder Isaiah Davenport and restored by the Historic Savannah Foundation as its first project. Delicate plaster work; spiraling; open-well, cantilevered staircase; and Ionic columns.

Fort Pulaski National Monument
U.S. 80 (15 miles east of Savannah). Named for Revolutionary War hero General Casimir Pulaski, the fort was built between 1829 and the mid-1840s to guard the Savannah coast. With its towering walls, wide drawbridge, and two moats, the fort was proclaimed a national monument in 1942.

Hamilton-Turner Mansion and Museum
330 Abercorn Street on Lafayette Square. Fine example of Second Empire Victorian architecture. Built in 1873 for Samuel Pugh Hamilton, former banker, mayor, and entrepreneur. The first floor is decorated with original or period furnishings.

Historic Railroad Shops
Just off Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard near the Visitors Center. Features 130-ton diesel locomotive on the turntable and 125-foot-tall brick smokestack in the background.

Hodgson Hall
501 Whitaker Street. Built in 1874-75 as a memorial to scholar William Brown Hodgson, Hodgson Hall is the headquarters of the Georgia Historical Society—the oldest such organization in the Southeast.

Juliette Gordon Low Girl Scout National Center
142 Bull Street. Savannah's first registered National Landmark was built c. 1820 and is the birthplace of Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the Girl Scouts of America.

King-Tisdell Cottage
514 East Huntingdon Street. Built in 1896, the cottage is significant for its unusually intricate gingerbread ornamentation on the porch and dormers. The museum displays art objects and documents relating to African-American history.

Old Fort Jackson
1 Fort Jackson Road (located 2 miles east of Savannah on the Savannah River. Take President Street extension to the Old Fort Jackson sign.) Blasts from the fort's massive 32-pound cannon are fired at special events; this is the largest black-powder cannon still fired in America.

Owens Thomas House
124 Abercorn Street. One of America's best examples of Regency period architecture. Designed by William Jay and built between 1816 and 1819, this mansion is a distinguished architectural treasure.

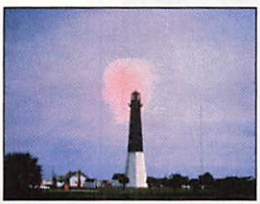
River Street Train Museum
315 West River Street. Features a guided tour of antique toy train displays, a large operating layout, memorabilia, and a gift shop.

Savannah History Museum at the Visitors Center
303 Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. Located on the site of the famous Revolutionary War battle, the 1779 Siege of Savannah. See artifacts and displays depicting Savannah's history. Video presentation documents founding of the colony to the present.

Savannah Science Museum
Paulsen and 62nd streets. Exhibits on natural and physical sciences, astronomy, and prehistoric animals of the Georgia coast.

Ships of the Sea Museum
503 East River Street and 504 East Bay Street. This museum features Savannah's maritime history with a large collection of models and maritime memorabilia that represent man's 2,000-year quest to conquer the sea. Nautical artifacts galore; superior collection of ship models.

Telfair Academy of Arts & Sciences
121 Barnard Street. Designed by William Jay, American paintings and art of the 18th and 19th centuries are displayed. See the Octagon Room (c. 1818), the dining room, and the restored Rotunda Gallery (c. 1886).



Tybee Island Lighthouse
U.S. 80 (18 miles east of Savannah). Georgia's oldest lighthouse (the original structure was built in 1733) is 154 feet tall. Visitors enjoy the Keeper's cottage, exhibits, and gift shop, as well as the climb to the top for a spectacular view.

Tybee Museum (Fort Screven)
U.S. 80 (18 miles east of Savannah). Located in an 1898 coastal artillery battery. Features exhibits on Tybee Island history from colonial days through World War II. The modern beach fort was built in 1875 and was manned during the Spanish-American War, World War I, and World War II.

The University of Georgia Marine Extension Service Aquarium
30 Ocean Science Circle, Skidaway Island. A public aquarium located on scenic Skidaway Island, this complex features approximately 50 species of local fish and invertebrates in a 12-tank aquarium. Other exhibits show historical and prehistoric uses of coastal resources. A nature trail and picnic area face the Intracoastal Waterway.

Wormsloe Historic Site
7601 Skidaway Road. Ruins of the fortified home constructed by Noble Jones between 1739 and 1745. Beautiful oak-lined drive, museum, audiovisual presentation, nature trails, and picnic area. ■

GEORGIA'S COLONIAL COAST

Discover Our World

Discover a world of treasures along Georgia's Colonial Coast, a unique blend of sparkling island beaches, fascinating history, unlimited shopping, breathtaking natural beauty, and recreational activities for all ages.

Stretching 112 miles from historic Savannah south to picturesque St. Mary's near the Florida state line, the Colonial Coast of Georgia offers an exciting range of history to explore. Visit the sites of Revolutionary War battles, Civil War forts, lighthouses, and quaint country churches alongside historic cemeteries.

Along this historic stretch you can follow in the footsteps of French trappers, Spanish missionaries, and Guale Indians, or experience an authentic swamp homestead complete with relics and artifacts. What's more, you can also enjoy miles of pristine beaches along the Atlantic Ocean or explore the wonders of the salt marshes that lie between the islands and the mainland.

Some islands offer family beaches with picnic and other facilities, while other islands are privately owned getaways accessible only by reservation. Cumberland Island National Seashore and state-owned Sapelo Island are also available for public tours, with regularly scheduled ferries.

Enjoy southern hospitality at its best as you experience a world of low-country traditions, folklore, and scenic beauty—the Georgia Colonial Coast. For more information on Georgia's Colonial Coast, call 1-800-GA-COAST.
